

New A-Maze-ing Attraction at the Santa Ana Zoo

SANTA ANA, CA – On Sunday July 9th the Santa Ana Zoo at Prentice Park celebrated the Grand Opening of the Wells Fargo “What in the World is it?” Maze. This attraction is an interactive maze filled with five different stations featuring endangered species from throughout the world. Explorers take an Animal Identification Passport before entering the maze and then try to locate each animal station inside by listening for the different sounds that each endangered species makes. Once an animal station is located, explorers guess “What in the World is it?” by reading the clues and stamping their Animal Identification Passports. Of course, their journey isn’t over after finding the five stations; they still have to find their way out!

Friends of Santa Ana Zoo would like to thank Wells Fargo, our maze sponsor, for helping bring this fun and educational attraction to the Zoo. Rob Myers, Market President for Wells Fargo, commented, “At Wells Fargo, we’re proud to support innovative exhibits like Santa Ana Zoo’s “What in the World is it?” maze that teaches children about the wonders and limits of our environment and the animals that live in it. I can’t think of a better learning environment than giving children a chance to laugh and play while searching out five mystery animal stations in a giant maze. My kids thought it was great!”

Friends of Santa Ana Zoo would also like to acknowledge the generous support from the Discovery Science Center for their donation of the maze framework.

The Wells Fargo “What in the World is it?” maze is free with purchase of admission. The Santa Ana Zoo at Prentice Park is located 1801 E Chestnut Ave, between the 5 freeway and 1st St. Admission is $6 for adults, $3 for children 3 to 12 years of age and senior citizens, and FREE to children 2 and under, people with disabilities, and Members of the Zoo.
