OCAAZK at the Santa Ana Zoo by Jenny Weber

If you have been to the Zoo lately, you have probably seen the large, black and white banner of the golden horned owl resembling this species—a female that lived for more than 30 years and holds the longevity record for this species, and two golden-headed anteaters. The latter three were particularly memorable because Santa Ana Zoo has been very successful in breeding this species. The golden-headed anteater is the third species of the family Myrmecophagidae to be born in the U.S. and the first to be born at the Santa Ana Zoo. The success of the breeding efforts and the longevity of this female anteater is a testament to the staff's dedication and hard work.

Thank you, Zoo members, for your generosity and support of OCAAZK over the years. Please stop by the OCAAZK table at the event for more information about our organization or upcoming events. Visit our Facebook page www.facebook.com/OCAAZK to stay up-to-date on all of our latest events.

Celebrate A Special Event

Celebrate a special event or occasion, or celebrate the life of an individual. You are invited to become a part of the OCAAZK at the Santa Ana Zoo with a personalized brick. For every $1.00 donated, three trees can be planted. You can also purchase a brick now online at www.santaanazoo.org. To purchase a brick, call 714-953-8555 and order it online at www.santaanazoo.org.

Animal Tales

Animal Tales: A Rush to the Rescue

Kimberly Anderson, Director of Technology and Education, presents a talk about the Santa Ana Zoo’s conservation efforts. The Zoo participates in Species Survival Plans (SSPs) through the National Aviary, the Association of Zoos and Aquariums, and the Endangered Species Act. The Zoo is committed to protecting and preserving species that are threatened by habitat loss, climate change, and other factors. The Santa Ana Zoo is working to maintain a healthy and balanced ecosystem for all species.
