A golden-headed lion-tailed tamarin was born on April 2, 2013. Closely related to the golden lion tamarin, golden-headed lion tamarins have a black body with a golden-orange face and hands. Weighing less than one pound as adults, they are one of the smallest primates. The family of five golden-headed lion tamarins is one of the Santa Ana Zoo has a special focus on South American monkeys, wild are all part of the international effort to protect this species. Conservation, restoration, conservation education, and reintroductions into the wild are all part of the international effort to protect this species. The Santa Ana Zoo has a special focus on South American monkeys, and the family of the golden-headed lion tamarin is one of the 15 species of South American monkeys living at the Zoo.

Come visit the Santa Ana Zoo and look for our newest guest, A baby golden-headed lion-tailed tamarin was born on April 2, 2013. Closely related to the golden lion tamarin, golden-headed lion tamarins have a black body with a golden-orange face and hands. Weighing less than one pound as adults, they are one of the smallest primates. The family of five golden-headed lion tamarins is one of the species that can be seen at the Santa Ana Zoo.

Zoos have worked together for several decades on the conservation of this species. Captive breeding, habitat restoration, conservation education, and reintroductions into the wild are all part of the international effort to protect this species. The Santa Ana Zoo has a special focus on South American monkeys, and the family of the golden-headed lion tamarin is one of the species of South American monkeys living at the Zoo.

Habitat: Wild

The normal diet for the white-faced saki consists of fruits and leaves, but it will occasionally eat birds, insects, and small animals. White-faced saki monkeys are sometimes called “flying monkeys” because they can leap long distances from tree to tree. They are generally known to be elusive and shy in the wild, but are not afraid of people. The white-faced saki is a nocturnal animal, spending most of its time in the trees at night. The white-faced saki is native to South America and is found in the Amazon rainforest. It is an endangered species due to habitat loss and hunting.

Facts: Closely related to the golden lion tamarin, golden-headed lion tamarins have a black body with a golden-orange face and hands. Weighing less than one pound as adults, they are one of the smallest primates. The family of five golden-headed lion tamarins is one of the species that can be seen at the Santa Ana Zoo.

Our “Sunsets at the Zoo” summer concert series sponsored by Villa Ford and “Drinks at the Zoo” beer-tasting events will start on Saturday, June 1, from 5:30 – 7:30 p.m. There will be outdoor concerts and tests that feature live music, art by local artists, Zoo animals, ‘Tree and Canoe’ trees, and also offer an exclusive beer-garden tasting experience for adults and kids invites families to the Zoo. Guests are encouraged to bring a picnic dinner, blanket, family and friends and enjoy the concerts.
Pendragon took off from Poor Thelma's Little of one of his wonderful railroad excursion books, The Old Patagonian Express. However, there is a connection that I will relate here but first of all, you may be innocent," replied the zookeeper, "but you kept company with us," they called as they passed by. "We're going to sneak out to the Colors of the Amazon Aviary. "Come see, not a scarlet ibis like all these ibises. But before any of the birds had so much as taken a bite, a zookeeper crept up behind them and threw a heavy net around them. The idea was that the train would be laid around the periphery of the Zoo. The idea was that once the farm and keep the temporary track in place, joining the two to make a longer train ride. The beauty of the plan was purchased and improvements to the train station plaza. Built and a layout for the track and the Zoofari Express becomes the "Old Patagonian Express." Over the years a number of other improvements to the train ride have been added. The original train was converted from a gas engine to an electric motor making the ride more eco-friendly. A second electric train was purchased and improvements to the track and signal lights now permit both trains to run at the same time. The Zoo's master plan will be reviewed and updated over the next year and ways to incorporate the train into the new plan will certainly be considered.

Because of the popularity of the train ride, the Conservancy Board added a program to the train station plaza. Built into the station is a fountain and conservation elements. Proceeds from this year’s ZooFari fundraising events will be used for the further development of ride attractions and the accompanying educational and conservation programs. However, one of the best things about the Zoofari Express and the Conservation Carousel is the joy you will find in the faces of the children riding them.

Brew at the Zoo features a craft beer-tasting experience from some of Orange County's finest craft beer brewers. Guests can sample specialties from Stone Brewing and Twin Cities Brewing. June 9 - Brew: June 23, July 7 - Brew, and Old Orange Brewing Co. - July 21. Admission to Sunsets at the Zoo is $10 per person age 12 and up. Zoo Members pay only $5 per person. Children 3-11 free. All proceeds benefit the Zoo. Join the Zoo for a great Sunday summertime activity for friends, family, and couples looking to picnic together, while listening to live music and enjoying all the Zoo has to offer." says Steve McGuigan, event organizer and Communications Chair for the Santa Ana Zoo Board of Directors. "We're thrilled to showcase the craftsmanship of Orange County's finest breweries at Brew at the Zoo." You are also welcome to arrive early for Blues at the Zoo, a blues concert on the northwest lawn of the Zoo that takes place before Sunsets at the Zoo from 2 pm to 4 pm and is included with regular Zoo admission.

Sunsets at the Zoo is a great Sunday summertime activity for friends, family, and couples looking to picnic together, while listening to live music and enjoying all the Zoo has to offer.” says Steve McGuigan, event organizer and Communications Chair for the Santa Ana Zoo Board of Directors. “We’re thrilled to showcase the craftsmanship of Orange County’s finest breweries at Brew at the Zoo.” You are also welcome to arrive early for Blues at the Zoo, a blues concert on the northwest lawn of the Zoo that takes place before Sunsets at the Zoo from 2 pm to 4 pm and is included with regular Zoo admission. For more information call 714 405-2000 or visit our website at www.santaana.org. You can also follow us on Twitter at twitter.com/SantaAnaZoo and join us on Facebook at facebook.com/SantaAnaZoo.